DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:
The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.
2. Claim 56 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
Claim 56, line 1 repeats "further comprising".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 39-47, 49, 51-52, 54 and 55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by JP 51022577 in light of JP 75002901 and US Patent 3713838 (to Ziegler), both these patents used as evidentiary references to show what is inherent.

The '577 patent abstract teaches a fertilizer of the claimed composition for use on turf. The composition inherently contains the ingredients of claim 40 as known in prior art (see spec at p.6, citing JP '901). The composition inherently contains yeast since it was obtained as a waste from brewery fermentation (see col. 2 in Ziegler). The claim that recites the method of application is not novel; both methods are conventional methods in fertilizer application.

4. Claims 39-47, 49, 52, 54 and 55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by JP 02022191 or JP 05163089.

The patent abstracts teach the use of beer refuse or consisting of malt residue, which is used as compost or fertilizer, respectively. The composition would inherently contain the limitations of claim 40 (see paragraph above). The composition has microorganisms added to it and meets claim 49. Composts are mechanically spread onto the soil.

5. Claims 39-48, 52, 54-56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Brokken (US Patents 4960452 and 4661358).

Calcium is added to brewer's wort. The composition is dried and powdered for use as a fertilizer. See the abstracts and cols. 2 and 3, and paragraph under "Preparation". The patents teach addition of the composition by spraying and application to soil, respectively.

6. Claims 39-47, 49, 52, 54-56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by AU 159/66.

See claim 1, page 4, page 5 (second paragraph), page 14, last 4 lines, page 17. The patent teaches fermentation or spent waste liquor from alcoholic fermentation can be dried and used as a fertilizer. Limitations of claims 40 or 44 are shown to be inherent to the composition by the specification itself (page 6). Yeast is part of the alcoholic fermentation process. Methods of application of the fertilizer claimed are the only known and conventional alternatives of each other.

7. Claims 39-49, 52, 54-56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by AU 12453/28 or Bass (US Patent 3983255).

The patents teach fermentation distillery waste can be dried and used as a fertilizer. Limitations of claims 40 or 44 are shown to be inherent to the composition by the specification itself (page 6). Yeast is part of the alcoholic fermentation process. Methods of application of the fertilizer claimed are the only known and conventional alternatives of each other.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 1761

8. Claims 50 and 51 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 02022191 in view of JP 05163089 and Stitt (US Patent 3961078) and further in view of Ziegler.

The JP '191 is as discussed above. The patent teaches microorganisms are to be used with the brewery waste to ferment the beer refuse to obtain the compost. The patent does not appear to teach what such microorganisms are. JP '089 teaches the use of thermophilic bacteria to ferment brewery waste and Stitt provides the details of what such microorganisms are. See col. 6, lines 10-25; and col. 3, lines 12-15 and line 30 wherein the conversion of brewery waste is listed. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to choose such microorganisms to ferment the same brewery wastes. Furthermore, the presence of yeast in brewery waste would have been obvious given Ziegler's teaching at col. 2.
